Absolute family values matter

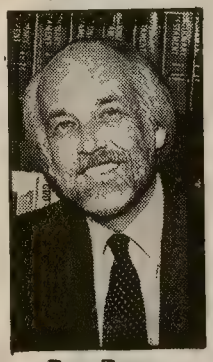
By Nancy Marlowe
FEATURES EDITOR

"Everywhere people are concerned about the family. The traditional family is in serious trouble. The divorce rate is 50 percent or better; children fall victim to drugs, unwanted pregnancy. The whole value thing has just come apart. My contention is the only thing that will make a difference are values that are absolute and come from a religious outlook."

So says former Ashevillean, the Rev. Stephen Brown, who recently resigned his pastorate at Key Biscayne Presbyterian Church, one of Miami's largest, to spread this conviction via the lecture circuit, the national radio program Key Life heard on 270 stations, books and numerous magazine such as Campus Life, Christianity Today and Today's Christian Woman, for which he serves on the executive board.

Brown conducted the 10th anniversary Harrison-Shaw Preaching Mission's interdenominational services, a four-day series just closed at Trinity United Methodist Church. Brown, who opened the series 10 years ago, spoke to a standing-room-only audience Sunday night. He is the son of Mrs. H. Webb Brown of Asheville and the brother of the late Ron Brown, who was Buncombe County district attorney at the time of his death in 1986 at age 40.

In an interview, Steve Brown, a disk jockey and radio newsman before he entered the clergy, traced the decline of American family values.



Rev. Brown

"We did bad things when we were young," Brown said, "but we knew they were bad. Now kids don't know the difference between bad and good. So we have a whole new generation acting in unethical and immoral ways and they don't even realize it.

"Asheville's fairly traditional — which is good — but the values of Miami are coming here and that's with help from the media, film, art, broadcasting.

"Three generations ago we had parents who were 'straight and godly.' They were good and they knew they were good. Biblical values were part of our culture. Then their kids came along (today's parents) and they did what their parents had done, but they didn't know why. We went to church, we sang hymns, we didn't run around too much, we didn't cheat too much. We were reasonably upstanding citizens, doing good without knowing why.

"Our kids came along (the third generation) and they asked things like 'Why shouldn't I sleep with my girlfriend? Smoke pot? Cheat?' 'Why not make a million dollars in junk bonds?' 'Why not build bad cars?' and we said, 'Just because ....'

"And then our children said to us, 'You are hypocrites. You are just doing this because you've always done it.' Meanwhile grandparents died and nobody was left who knew why."

Brown said that the lack of values is being recognized and an effort made to reintroduce them by teaching them in schools ranging from local schools to

SOUND OF THE SHOFAR

During more than four years as your preacher I have learned an important fact. One of the greatest strengths of Trinity Church has been our volunteers. However, we need more persons who are willing to volunteer for specific responsibilites if our ministry is to expand in the ways I believe God desires. When a call is issued for volunteers don't wait to respond- even without being contacted personally . At the present time we need more volunteers in three areas: 1) Child care in the nursery during worship; 2) Visit newcomers at our Worship Services; 3) Fellowship Freinds for new members. If you can help contact Anne Martin, Hal and Alberta Starnes, or Bill Clodfelter.

Dear Brother Clodfelter,

Thank you so much for taking time to extend your invitation to me to attend the Tenth Harrison-Shaw Preaching Mission.

I know it would be a great joy to be able to fellowship and to hear the tremendous teaching of Steve Brown in our own community.

Sadly, I am out of the city that week in special meetings and traveling. I want you to know that we will be praying for you and the special meeting in spite of our absence.

Thank you for your faithful work that you are doing in our community and for the labor of love on the steering committee. If there is anything that we can do from our church staff or family to be of assistance, please let us know.

May God bless you and strengthen you and your laborers at Trinity United Methodist Church and your labor of love for the Lord.

Yours in Jesus,

Ralph

THE WEDNESDAY 10:45 PROGRAM has been changed. Circumstances have caused us to reschedule Mrs. Hardin's musical program. Instead we will take a "spectacular journey" to see "THE GRIZZLIES". National Geographic has captured a fascinating portrait of this powerful, intelligent, and extremely aggressive creature. Despite man's combined fear of and fascination with the grizzly, the bear survives today only by consent of his one real contender-man. Video in the Chapel.
